

BULLET GRAZED MAN; POLICEMAN HAD FIRED 'IN AIR'

Mysterious Shooting Endangers Bystander During Chase of Fugitive.

It all came through John Sullivan, twenty-two, of No. 175 Madison street, meeting Lizzie Smith, thirty-five, of No. 4 Second street, on Catherine street, near the "Gap," early to-day and engaging her in conversation. Lizzie was in a convivial mood and soon got in an argument with her newly found friend. This ended in the ungallant John knocking Lizzie down and taking to his heels.

James Daspino, twenty-three, of No. 22 Oliver street, was standing in front of No. 43 Oliver street minding his own business and absolutely unconcerned about anybody else's quarrels. He was, in fact, a very innocent bystander. Without warning, there was a pistol report, and a bullet came zipping his way. It took off a button from the front of his coat and ploughed a neat furrow in the cloth. Daspino dropped to the sidewalk yelling he had been shot. There was difficulty in convincing him afterwards his stomach had not been perforated.

It seems that Policeman Kruse, of the Madison street station, saw the Sullivan-Smith incident and hot-footed it after the fleeing man. He claims he fired one shot in the air, and that it could not have possibly been his bullet that tipped off Daspino's button. Captain O'Toole, of the Oak street station, standing on the steps of the station-house says he heard several shots. Policeman King had joined Kruse in the chase after Sullivan, but he denies he used his gun. Sullivan was caught and locked up in the Madison street station-house. The Smith woman was picked up in the Union Market station-house after a scarp wound she received in falling had been dressed. Daspino was convinced that he was not shot and allowed to go home.

P. S. BOARD POINTS WITH PRIDE TO ITS RECORD.

Says Its Work Cut Down Delays on Bridge to 27 Minutes in a Year.

For the year ended Sept. 1, 1907, there were 147 delays in the movement of trolley cars over the Brooklyn Bridge, causing a total loss of 621 minutes. For the year ended Sept. 1, 1908, there were but fourteen interruptions to traffic, with a total delay of twenty-seven minutes. The Public Service Commission points to this report as evidence of the efficiency of its work in issuing orders demanding improvement.
